“Of the ESTIMATED 2.1 million Americans currently in the grip of opioid addiction, many are women of childbearing age. The young-adult population has been hardest hit, proportionately, with nearly 400,000 adults ages 18 to 25 suffering from addiction to prescription painkillers (the vast majority) or heroin.

The number of pregnant women using opioids grew significantly between 2004 and 2013, according to recent research published in JAMA Pediatrics, with the increase disproportionately high — more than 600 percent — in rural areas. Another decade-long study found a fivefold increase in the number of newborns who experienced the opioid-withdrawal condition known as neonatal abstinence syndrome, or NAS: to eight per 1,000 hospital births from one and a half. Experts estimate that a baby with NAS is born in America every 15 minutes.”

OUR SPONSORS

We would like to acknowledge and thank the sponsors of Communities Against The Opioid Epidemic Symposium

Dear Collaborator in Health,

It is a pleasure to welcome you to the Communities Against the Opioid Epidemic Symposium in collaboration with the Governor's Advisory Commission on Latino Affairs. This year saw Governor Tom Wolf declaring a statewide disaster emergency concerning the heroin and opioid epidemic, followed with a renewal in April. Governor Wolf stated: "We have made real progress during the disaster declaration... But it is critical that we keep building on our efforts at prevention, rescue, and treatment... to ensure that my administration and local partners can continue to use every tool available to them to help people and communities in need."

It is for this purpose that today's Symposium is taking place. We are committed to being part of the movement to find the solution to this growing dilemma. Recent studies demonstrate alarming increases of drug-related deaths amongst minorities including a 39% increase among Black Americans and a 24% increase among Latinos.* The National Institute of Disability, Independent Living and Rehabilitation Research released a request for information on opioid use disorder among persons with disabilities.

Understandably, the theme for today's event is: Defining a Solution to the Opioid Crisis in Minority and Rural Communities. Our goal today is to collaborate and find solutions to core issues in this epidemic:

- Compare how the opioid epidemic affects different racial, ethnic and other minority communities
- Identify new collaborative strategies for communities and create key partnerships to implement these necessary strategies
- Identify and measure current strategies to prevent, intervene and treat the epidemic

Today, as you listen to the panel discussions, attend the breakout sessions and interact with each other, keep the above objectives in mind. It is up to us to commit and believe that a solution does exist and that together we can bring an end to these alarming increases.

Before I close, I'd like to thank each of you for attending. As leaders, providers and organizations, you bring your expertise to this gathering and help pave the way towards building healthier communities. I especially thank our Sponsors for being fellow participants in this community of doers!

Enjoy your time at the State Museum. I, as well as my team, is here to serve in any capacity you need

With admiration and respect,

George Fernandez

“Not everyone defines good health in the same way, not everyone has the same goals and the same needs. We work with you to tailor our mission to what your needs are.”

JASON ROTTMAN, CEO AETNA BETTER HEALTH OF PA

Welcome,

Thank you for attending the “Communities Against the Opioid Epidemic Symposium.” Today you will hear from nationally recognized leaders including physicians and public servants working to address growing concerns surrounding opioid use in ethnic, minority and rural communities. Our mission today is to facilitate the creation of key partnerships to implement collaborative strategies.

As the Title Sponsor working in partnership with the Governor’s Advisory Commission on Latino Affairs, we are honored to be a part of this forum. We are dedicated to finding and promoting life changing solutions to the opioid crisis across our state. Thank you to Latino Connection, the Pennsylvania Department of Health, the Pennsylvania Department of Human Services, the York County District Attorney’s office, the Harrisburg Police Bureau, West Virginia University, Penn State Health, Temple Health, Pennsylvania Harm Reduction Coalition, and the many physicians and community partners here today for your amazing collaboration to address the opioid epidemic.

Together, we will build a healthier world, one person and one community at a time.

TOGETHER

Personal health

“You get tired of doing the same thing. I don’t want to die, you know. Today I choose to do different. It got to the point where my self-worth was below bottom. So my bottom, it’s like infinite. I stopped believing in myself. I had no self-respect, no self-worth. Today I have life because of Aetna. Today I can believe in myself because Aetna believed in me.”

Join this session to learn about the promises and pitfalls of different strategies for preventing youth misuse of prescription opioids. This session will provide an overview of what research tells us about developmental pathways of substance use, how brain development and other factors play into whether programs and strategies are effective. We will then examine how to strengthen locally-developed community programs, informed by developmental psychology and prevention science principles.

Dr. Stephanie Bradley, PhD – All Youth Access

1:00 PM – 2:00 PM

Educational Breakout Sessions (Two to choose from)

Opioid Use in Communities with Disabilities

📍 The Auditorium, 1st Floor

This session will focus on the opioid epidemic in rural Appalachian and its association (and impact) for individuals with disabilities and their families. The panel will present current experiences and perspectives concerning the rising prevalence of Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome (NAS) among newborns, the potential differences in enrollment, treatment, and outcomes among the Medicaid population, and differences in treatment trajectories for individuals with disabilities who receive substance use treatment. Unfortunately, the rising issues related to opioid use have presented themselves quickly without much time to response or assess current infrastructure needs or test practices. This panel will discuss the overarching questions that must be discussed to reduce the impact of this epidemic, particularly for individuals with disabilities.

Dr. Lesley Cottrell, PhD – West Virginia University – A Center of Excellence in Disabilities

MEET THE PRESENTERS

Dr. Stephanie Bradley

Dr. Stephanie Bradley is passionate about ensuring government and communities have access to research and best practices on what works in preventing youth substance use. She regularly meets with policymakers, philanthropies, and community organizations to discuss upstream prevention strategies that are effective at preventing all types of problem behaviors, including the misuse of prescription opioids. For the past five years she has facilitated and led the adoption and dissemination of evidence-based prevention practices in Pennsylvania, in partnership with diverse state and county PA policymakers and philanthropic organizations. Dr. Bradley has served as a member of Opioid

Prevention Subcommittee of the Governor's Advisory Board for Health, and has contributed to prevention policy recommendations related to the opioid epidemic that have been delivered to Pennsylvania's Opioid Command Center, and to the federal Department of Justice.

She is the founder and Principal Advisor for All Youth Access, a public service organization focused on prevention and positive youth development for youth of color. All Youth Access provides guidance for youth serving organizations and government entities on issues such as needs assessments, program evaluation, and workshop facilitation, with a focus on the real and unique needs of youth of color.

Dr. Bradley earned her doctorate from the Penn State department of Human Development and Family Studies, where she focused her studies on prevention science, adolescent development, measurement, and program evaluation.

Dr. Lesley Cottrell

Dr. Lesley Cottrell is a Professor in the Department of Pediatrics in the WVU School of Medicine at West Virginia University and the Director of the Center for Excellence in Disabilities. She is also the Vice Chair of Research for the Department of Pediatrics. Dr. Cottrell is a Developmental Psychologist by training. Her research interests examine parental influences on child and adolescent health risk decision-making and behaviors. She has led several national projects designed to examine childhood chronic health issues including the National Children's Study WV site and the IDeA States Pediatric Clinical Trial Network site. Additionally, Dr. Cottrell is interested in integrated medicine. She is a Co-Investigator on the State Innovation Model Design Award. She also serves as the Co-Chair of the WV Health Innovation Collaborative's Better Health Workgroup. This workgroup is one of three workgroups within the collaborative based on the Triple Aim concept with the charge of improving linkages between health care services and population health outcomes.

Representative Angel Cruz

State Rep. Angel Cruz has been a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives since 2001. During his tenure, Rep. Cruz has drafted and had enacted several important pieces of legislation including Act 148 of 2014, which expanded newborn screening in Pennsylvania; helped to secure grants for numerous non-profit organizations and projects in his district; and played the leading role in the abduction investigation and return of Delamar Vera, a story which made international news and was depicted in a Lifetime Movie.

Current: Democratic Chairman, Pennsylvania House Human Services Committee; Immediate Past President, National Hispanic Caucus of State Legislators; and Ward Leader 7th Ward, City of Philadelphia for 22 years.

Past: Assistant to Philadelphia City Councilman; Co-Chair of the Philadelphia Delegation; United States Hispanic Leadership Conference; National Association of Latino Elected Officials; 1st Latino Assistant Secretary to Philadelphia City Committee, Democratic Party; Served as a delegate and Committeeman-At-Large to the Democratic National Committee; Vice President, National Hispanic Caucus of State Legislators; and Ward Leader 7th Ward, City of Philadelphia for 22 years.

MEET THE PRESENTERS

Dr. Todd Grove, PharmD

Todd Grove is an outpatient pharmacist for Penn State Health Milton S. Hershey Medical Center (PSHMC). Todd completed his undergraduate studies at Temple University and then obtained his Doctor of Pharmacy degree (PharmD) from Wilkes University. He currently works in multiple departments throughout the hospital system including the outpatient retail pharmacies, Rx2Go (meds to beds program), and the Anticoagulation Clinic. From the pharmacist's level, Todd interacts with patients daily that struggle with complicated barriers to care and a multitude of pain related conditions. Todd is an active member of several related professional organizations including the Lancaster County Pharmacists Association (LCPA), the South Central PA Opioid Awareness Coalition (SCPaoAC), and the Heroin Opioid Prevention and Education (HOPE) Collaborative. Todd's areas of interests include community outreach projects related to public health and topics related to ambulatory care.

Dr. Johnathan Gusdorff

Dr. Jonathan Gusdorff graduated from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, then completed a residency in Diagnostic Radiology at The Bryn Mawr Hospital. He then went on to complete a fellowship in Neuroradiology at Emory University School of Medicine in Atlanta. After several years in private practice, Gusdorff decided to branch out into the business world. Following the latest healthcare trends, he opened up the first urgent care center in Delaware County certified by the Urgent Care Association of America. CareSTAT Urgent Care Centers quickly grew to four locations across Delaware and Montgomery Counties and was a regular source for healthcare news affecting the Delaware Valley. Gusdorff and CareSTAT had been featured on WPVI's Health Check report and in The Philadelphia Business Journal several times during his ownership of CareSTAT. In 2015, Gusdorff sold CareSTAT to a larger organization based in Maryland.

In 2016 he helped to organize a group of professionals following Governor Wolf's signing Act 16 (The Medical Marijuana Act) into law. He and his group applied for a permit to lawfully dispense medical marijuana, and in June, 2017, was awarded a permit to open three medical marijuana dispensaries in South Central Pennsylvania. In addition, Gusdorff has been sanctioned by the Department of Health to educate physicians, hospitals, healthcare providers and law enforcement officials about medical marijuana, its appropriate uses, the law and Pennsylvania's program.

Dr. Gusdorff resides in Bryn Mawr PA with his two daughters.

Lynn A. Kovich, M.Ed.
